Why Sydney?

Sydney is Australia's most iconic destination, welcoming millions of visitors each year. It's one of the world's most recognisable cities with its scenic landmarks, beaches, historic precincts, food, arts and culture scene.

Here at the University of Sydney, we're located on the doorstep of downtown Sydney, just a 30-minute walk from the Opera House and Harbour Bridge, and a bus or ferry ride from the world-famous Bondi and Manly beaches.

Our Units of Study

Our Short-Term Program offers the largest unit of study selection in Australia to Study Abroad and Exchange students. Each unit is taught in an intensive format, while maintaining credit values. Many units of study are taught alongside local students and provide hands-on experiential learning in an Australian context. Students can select up to two units of study.

Most units of study have no pre-requisites and are great for general elective credit back home. We also have some more specialised, core units of study, designed for Business and Liberal-Arts majors.

In 2025, some of our most popular unit of study options include:

- GCST1602 Sex, Gender, Culture: This unit examines how gender organises lives, bodies, sexualities and desires. Students will be introduced to foundational concepts in the study of gender and will critically engage with questions of identity, sexuality, family, the body, cultural practices and gender norms in light of contemporary gender theories.
- USSC1604 Sex, Race and Rock in the USA: This unit explores the cultural history of and intersections between sexuality, race and rock music in the United States from Elvis to Beyonce. Influenced by black and working-class cultures, and with sexuality embedded in its form and practice, rock music challenged and transformed existing norms of family, sex and gender. Subjects like Black women, glam rock, and disco, will help teach how it provided a realm for rebellion, freedom, community and profit.
- GCST2612 Youth and Youth Culture: This unit examines academic, public and popular ideas about youth and practices of youth culture. It will introduce students to some of the current parameters for studying the experience of youth and youth cultural forms and practices. We will pay particular attention to the ways young lives are gendered and the role gender plays in the institutions and other contexts in which young people live. Other points of focus include changing conceptions of youth, relationships between policy and youth, images of youth and youth culture, and discourses on (im)maturity, training, and identity.

– HSTY1003: Birth of the Present: The World Since 1750: Enlightenment and oppression, colonisation and decolonisation, the making and unmaking of nation states and the forging and unravelling of global relationships: the history of the modern world is a history of contradiction, crisis, despair and optimism. Linking social, cultural, political, environmental and economic histories in Asia, Europe, the Americas and Australia, this unit poses the question: what, in these different places, did it mean to be modern?

- WORK3205 Organisational Communication: Drawing on communication research models, theories and case studies, this unit provides students with insight into how to manage the complexities of contemporary organisational communication. The unit focuses primarily on internal organisational communication and examines communication processes at various levels: interpersonal (dyadic), group and organisation.
- HSBH3021 Environmental Stress and Physiological Strain: Focuses on how the human body responds to extreme environmental stressors (i.e. high altitude, hyperbaria, extreme heat, extreme cold), and how these conditions alter human capacity to perform physical and mental tasks. Special attention is given to decrements to human health in the form of injury (e.g. frostbite, heat exhaustion) and illness (e.g. pulmonary/cerebral oedema, acute mountain sickness), and how this can be used to develop therapeutic, pharmacological, and technological interventions to improve human functioning in extreme environments.

- EDUH4058 Sport and Learning in Australian Culture: This unit provides students with a socially critical perspective on the place, meaning and practice of sport in Australian culture. Focused on the range of learning that takes place through youth's engagement in sport, it examines the practice of sport at levels ranging from elite international sport to grass roots, community-based and school sport. Students in this unit participate in excursions to local rugby, Australian rules football (AFL), beach sports events, and more!

Sydney welcomes you

Sydney is a place where we are proud to say everyone can belong. Supporting and celebrating identity is important to us, and the safety to be who you are is something we strive to ensure for all students during their time abroad with us.

Cultural diversity

Sydney is an incredibly diverse and multicultural city, welcoming students from all over the world. International festivals and holidays are regularly celebrated on campus, where all staff are trained on cultural competence and anti-racism. There are also more than 40 student clubs and societies based around ethno-cultural connections and many others uniting people across cultures with a shared passion.

Gender and Sexuality

Sydney has a long history as one of the most LGBTQ+ friendly cities in the world, having recently hosted World Pride 2023. From Pride Square in Newtown, on the doorstep of campus, to Oxford Street in the city's east, Sydney is a place that celebrates the LGBTQ+ community. The University of Sydney is an active participant in the annual Mardi Gras Pride Parade, and is home to more than 10 clubs and societies for LGBTQ+ students.

Disability and Inclusion

The University is dedicated to ensuring that all students have equal access to learning. All housing options for our study abroad students have accessible room options, and our disability services team is well equipped to ensure that student adjustments during their semester abroad are in line with their home University, and supports them to meet their academic potential.
